For: Expertly using popsicle sticks and rubber bands to boost the golf ball with strategic slaps.

Text:
This team designed a simple and elegant solution to boost the speed of their golf balls and to give gravity a helping slap. The team incorporated three strategically placed 'boosters' along their track that were triggered as the ball passed to optimize speed and ensure the golf ball reached the end line as quickly as possible. The Appraisers were wowed that popsicle sticks and rubber bands could have such a powerful impact on the team's solution.Â

Text:
This team's moving portrayal of the familiar story of the life and death of Princess Diana from the perspective of her son, Prince Harry, was a tasteful tribute told with astonishing maturity. The risk taking in handling this sensitive topic was most impressive. Every element of the story was executed with well-researched intention, and the Appraisers were moved by the relevant and urgent messaging behind the story. This team taught everyone in the audience an important lesson about compassion and humanity. We want this team to go save the world, and they showed us that they're ready!

For: profoundly enhancing educational opportunities for students in India.

Text:
The Torchbearer Award honors teams whose solutions have an extraordinary impact in and beyond their local communities.

This team spent 1,000 hours (and counting!) making a profound difference in the lives of children who live at the Corp Shelter, and we can only imagine the ripples that will result. For 18 months, this team has taught weekly enrichment programs to the Mumbai students via Zoom -- everything from Python programming, to piano classes, to dance, to math. If that weren't enough, while leading these enrichment courses, the team realized that the children at the shelter were unable to pursue higher education because of enormous financial obstacles. They then raised over $20,000 to make college and career training programs attainable for the 12 high school seniors at the shelter. Because of this team, 12 students are now able to pursue their aspirations and fulfill their potential: as a lawyer, a beautician, an air hostess, a fashion designer, a tailor, a psychologist, and more.Â

This team will continue to support these students and teach enrichment classes even after the DI season wraps up. They inspire us with their dedication to opening up profound opportunities to students who live thousands of miles away.Â

For: a unique and risky approach to demonstrating a very serious bike safety problem.

Text:
This team's approach to sharing about bike safety awareness was unique in its integration of several components that emphasized the life-and-death importance of addressing this topic. A pivotal scene in the team's Presentation set up the dire need for more bike safety awareness by showing a student who was riding a bike getting hit by a car when not wearing a helmet. The drama of this moment was enhanced in several unique and risky ways. The team had made an entire bicycle out of PVC pipes and then constructed a car with a built-in sled on wheels. The car could lift the full weight of a person using a winch controlled by a drill motor. When the character riding the PVC bike was "hit" by the car, the action went into slow motion as the bike rider was very slowly raised by the winch, all while maintaining the look of someone just hit by a car. The team further added to the effect of the scene through a unique use of scenery to utilize perspective and depth to emphasize and highlight the car hitting the bike as a focal point. Following from this pivotal bike crash, the audience, along with the characters in the story, anxiously anticipated finding out what happened to the rider who was hit--not seeing, but instead hearing the details of what happened in the hospital where the rider was taken. The suspense left the audience wondering what did happen to the bike rider in the end, and thus fully engaged in the importance of raising awareness about bike safety.

For: Making the Appraisers second guess which cookie to chose after watching puppets tell the tale of a crumbling empire.

Text:

Who doesn't love a good story, or milk and cookies? The Appraisers were delighted to have both when they heard the story of the Loose brothers who created Oreo and Hydrox cookies.

This team took a big risk when they choose a non-fiction story. But their originality, humor, and attention to detail carried the day, Their Flipped Tale took us on an elaborate puppet show adventure where Oreo and his sister Hydrox tell the story of how the relationship of the brothers "crumbled," resulting in two separate companies, Sunshine Biscuit and Nabisco.

Using personification, Oreo, Hydrox, Chips Ahoy, Girl Scout, and Nilla Wafer came to life with their "tasty" dialogue and detailed costumes adding some "sweet" details.

Finally, starting with a party scene, their Scenery Flip was a box that changed five times by folding over itself. From becoming a table, it changed to a trophy case, a cookie factory and ultimately to a package of Oreos whose intricate engineering was inspired by a paper fortune teller.

The imaginative use of puppets, factual and fun dialogue along with this team's creative engineering left the Appraisers craving more!

For: an exemplary performance and technical design that inspired their audience to fight against period poverty.

Text:
This team's Presentation exemplified attention to detail and well-executed performance, integration, and technical design. From a drumbeat that dramatically presented the heartbeat of a main character, to songs that presented information explicitly and through metaphor about the team's project, to a carousel carrying detailed animals and rotating on a motor, this team's performance was captivating from start to finish. The drumbeat heartbeat was produced in both real time and slow motion, and it was enhanced by lights through mechanical and electrical engineering. The team programmed motors to beat the drum, programmed a sensor to listen for the sound of the heartbeat, and showed lights flashing in a rainbow to further emphasize the heartbeat. The team's original songs were integrated throughout the Presentation and taught the audience about the stigma of periods and the inequity involved in period poverty. The carousel spun around on a pulley while showing three animals that represented three different continents where the team donated menstrual cups as part of their Project. Every aspect of this team's Presentation and solution captivated the audience and inspired them to join the fight against period poverty.
